Quarter of a century after and for the first time since the death of King Kalakaua, his birthday anniversary is today being observed in Honolulu, today being observed in Honolulu with ceremonies and celebration in which the general public is taking part. That honor, esteem and love for the once merry monarch of Hawaii and for his memory survive and are being cherished in the hearts of those who knew him and were his subjects is being manifested. That the older folk have instilled something of their own feelings in the minds and hearts of the younger generation is also apparent.

Kalakaua Day is not being observed as a general holiday but it is being appropriately observed none the less. Some of the courts are closed and some business houses did not open, city offices were closed at noon, some employees are absent from their desks. Appropriately it is a Hawaiian day for Hawaiians and equally appropriately some Hawaiian customs mark its commemoration. Naturally interest centered much about those who were of the royal family, about Queen Liliuokalani and the home of Princess David Kawanakoa, where a reception was the chief feature of the morning program, and many called at the home of the queen.

Pa-u riders paraded the streets in gay attire to the home of the queen and thence to the reception. The Hawaiian band played Hawaiian airs and there were miniature yacht races in the harbor, yachting being a sport the late king is said to have greatly enjoyed. The culmination will come this evening at the ball in the armory to which hundreds of guests have been bidden. To hundreds it is a holiday in all but name. Further, it shows what may be done in later years now that a start has been made.

Pa-u Riders Parade
With ribbons and gay costumes waving in the breeze and riding spirited horses 14 Kaohelaian pa-u riders paraded through the streets of Honolulu this morning as part of the celebration in honor of the Kalakaua dynasty. Headed by Princess Theresa Wilcox the gay troupe left the Princess auto stand on King street at 9:30 o'clock and rode to Ala park. From there they returned on King street to Fort over Hotel and down Bishop to King again and then up Richard to Beretania, where they stopped at Washington Place, the home of Queen Liliuokalani, and paid their respects to the last native ruler of the Hawaiian islands.

The riders then followed Beretania street to Pensacola, on which street the home of Princess Kawanakoa is situated. There a reception was held by the princess for Hawaiians only. They then disbanded until this evening, when they will attend the reception and ball at the armory.

The costumes of the pa-u riders this morning were very gay. The first nine wore black and gold, then came a rider dressed in purple and following her four more with green robes. All wore leis and the horses, too, were decorated with ribbons and leis.

Hawaiian Band Plays
Because of the illness of Queen Liliuokalani, who could not take part today in the festivities, the Hawaiian band, which ordinarily would have played in front of her residence, played instead at the home of Prince and Princess Kalaniana'ole from 7 to 8 o'clock. From 9 until noon they played at the reception of Princess Kawanakoa.

Sun Brightens Scene
For three hours, from 9 to 12 this morning, the sun's beams sought out the broad expanses of Princess Kawanakoa's home, playing prettily through the algaroba, coconut and poinciana trees upon the all-white

(Associated Press by Federal Wirelless)
CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 16.—Women are failures as clerks and judges at elections, according to a statement made today by Assistant Corporation Counsel Frank Ayers, who is superintending the canvass of votes here. He says that it has been necessary for his office to spend hundreds of dollars in untangling mixups which were due to women officials at the polling booths.

Late News At A Glance

INTER-ISLAND HEARING HEATED AFFAIR
Once again this afternoon the cool recesses of the public utilities rooms in the Kauikeolani building are the scene of a hot word battle between Attorney L. J. Warren, inter-island representative, and H. Gooding Field, special auditor of the commission for the company's books.

Flanked by their own auditor, and the vice-president and acting president of the steamship company as well, Attorney Warren is cross-examining the witness. Early in the meeting Warren took up the testimony given by Field at last meeting, seeking to prove that he made statements without qualifying them.

Field declared today that the capital assets had been arbitrarily impaired by wiping out a depreciation fund of $432,020.70, a corresponding amount having been written off the book values of the company. He also stated that the amount was not thrown into surplus at all.

Warren tried to prove through reference to last meeting's minutes that Field claimed it went into dividends, Field insisting that he later qualified this statement. No decision was reached as the shorthand notes have not been written up and the commission ruled to wait until they have.

"I'd like to state," said Warren, "that the witness was positive in his declaration, and did not qualify it."

"And I tell you, Mr. Warren, that I did qualify it," retorted Field.

When Field added today that two months after the wiping out of the depreciation fund, a sum of $629,979.82 had been paid in dividends, Warren interrupted.

"Do you mean there is still ground for suspicion," he exclaimed, "by again referring to this latter sum?"

"No, I don't," and added that there is no logical connection between the two. "It was a mighty unusual piece of bookkeeping, though," he said after a moment.

"Why did you ask me what became of the money?" demanded Warren.

"I thought you might know," returned Field. The whole procedure was most unusual. I thought you could explain it."

"I don't aspire to a position of the sort," retorted the attorney.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 16.—According to J. M. Bell, general secretary of the National Association of Master Bakers, 20 per cent of the bakers in the United States have been forced out of business on account of soaring prices of labor commodities.

MAJOR EAMES IN TALK EXPLAINS RAPID FIRE GUN

Interesting Address Given by Commandant of School of Fire Before Rotarians

Major Henry E. Eames, commandant of the school of fire at Schofield Barracks, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Rotary Club at the Commercial Club today at noon. His address was on modern firing arms, and as an illustration of his talk brought three models of rapid firing guns with him.

Three guns have been sent to Hawaii for defense. These are the Lewis, the Vickers-Maxim and the Ben-Mercier. The Vickers-Maxim is the largest of the three, and is water cooled, while the others are cooled by air. These guns which have been sent to Hawaii are at the rate of 500 shots each minute and may be fed at the rate of 250 shots per minute. Major Eames explained that the Vickers-Maxim gun had more accuracy on account of the strength of the supports. The guns were placed on a table by the speaker, and after his talk was completed a

Queen Sends Her Greetings to San Diego Exposition For Kalakaua Day

Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii sends greetings to the people of California through the medium of the Panama-California Exposition, and expresses her thanks for the public recognition of the Hawaiian islands on the birthday of her brother, the late King Kalakaua, during whose reign the first great impetus to the islands' industries was given. My earnest wish is not only for the maintenance of the closest relations between the people of those islands with those of California, but with all who dwell under the protection of the American flag.

LILIUOKALANI.
This message, published today for the first time, was sent by Queen Liliuokalani to the San Diego exposition for Hawaii Day, to be read at the Panama-California building at the Hawaii and Kalakaua Day celebrations, held there this afternoon. The queen had this letter forwarded to President Davidson of the California-Panama Exposition two weeks ago.

Artillery Bombardment Heralds Plans for New Infantry Attacks

(Associated Press by Federal Wirelless)
BERLIN, Germany, Nov. 16.—A German submarine on November 15 torpedoed and sank a 12,000-ton hostile transport 80 miles west of Malta. The transport at the time was under the convoy of destroyers and other patrolling craft.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 16.—In view of the statement by Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, on the food shortage before the house of commons yesterday, a group of house members declare that they will support a motion that the manufacture of intoxicating liquors be prohibited.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 16.—With the fiercest fighting of the month on the south Balkan front today, the Balkans are the focus of interest now.

Despatches from various sources yesterday and today show that the Allies have defeated the Bulgarian army which has stretched through Macedonia in a long line almost from Albania eastward to the Bulgarian border along the Struma bend. This army, which has occupied Serbia for many months, following the conquering of that country by the Central Powers, is now being rolled back in defeat.

The Serbians, who have been co-operating with the French and British soldiers from Saloniki, have captured the important towns of Tatarski and Gniles, southeast of Monastir, toward which city they are pressing.

Other war despatches tell of the bombardment of Bucharest, capital of Rumania, by German aviators. They dropped a number of bombs on the city, killing four civilians and wounding 20 others.

From the sea-zone of war today comes news that the Greek steamer Earbaria and the Norwegian steamer Lekken have been sunk, but whether by submarine or mine is not given out.

BULGARIANS HARD BESET

PARIS, France, Nov. 16.—The French, with their forces augmented by Russian regiments which recently landed at Saloniki, have cut their way forward against the Bulgarians until they are now within four miles of Monastir. The Bulgarian army on this sector, defeated and thrust from its positions, is retreating, pursued by the Allies.

On another sector, west of the Czerna river, where British and French are cooperating, the Bulgarians have abandoned their principal positions, and toward Yaraschok the French and Serbians are making good progress.

On still another part of this front, in Macedonia, near the Struma river, the British have assumed the offensive and have defeated the Bulgarians, capturing the village of Karakaska.

BERLIN ADMITS REVERSES

BERLIN, Germany, Nov. 16.—On the Macedonian front, the Germans and Bulgarians have retired to new prepared positions in the Czerna district. On the Russian front a fruitless attack was made by the Slavs east of Putna Valley. Another fruitless attack was started on the north end of the long line, southeast of Riga.

On the west front, the British made an attack at Grandcourt today but it broke down under the German fire. The French lost a section of the Sallissel trenches and the northern edge of St. Pierre Vaast wood.

MACKENSEN IN RETREAT

PETROGRAD, Germany, Nov. 16.—Gen. von Mackensen's army, which invaded Rumania through the Dobrudja district a few weeks ago, is today retreating through the ravaged Dobrudja district, beaten and burning villages as it retreats.

On the Russian front, in the region of Kampongung, there is fierce fighting in progress. Along the entire front where Russian is opposing Germany and Austria a heavy artillery bombardment is under way.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 16.—The Rumanians in southern Transylvania have retired toward Areful and Radicines in the Alt valley and the direction of Capaces in the Jui valley.

PARIS, France, Nov. 16.—On the west front today the French by a series of determined charges recaptured a portion of Pressoire, which the Germans occupied yesterday.
